JUDGE DAVIS is said to be worth two millions of dollars.

THE San Francisco fund for a Garfield statue amounts to $20,000.

CYRUS W. FIELD has purchased the New York Evening Express, and took possession last Saturday.

It is said that Guitau feels more shame over his indebtedness at boarding houses than he does at the assassination of the President.

REV. MR. BURTON, of Kalamazoo, who has heard Guitau lecture, thought that "he was not so much damaged as very badly arranged."

JUDGE PRINCE, while in New York, endeavored to find capitalists willing to invest money in a street railway at Santa Fe, but he found none who thought favorably of the proposition.

A NEW and fatal cattle disease has appeared in the vicinity of Dubuque, Iowa. One farmer lost nine cows in one night. The animals are seized with rigors and trembling, and death ensues in a few hours after they are attacked.

WM. C. son of Henry Ward Beecher, was married Thanksgiving eve to Miss Josie Bigelow, at Plymouth church, Brooklyn. The day following Herbert F., the youngest son of Henry Ward, was married to Miss Hattie Foster, of Nevada.

THE census of 1880 gives the total population of the United States at 50,156,883, an increase of 11,598,412 since 1870. The increase between 1860 and 1870 was but little over seven millions, being about equal to that of the ten years preceding from 1850 to 1860. The census of 1880 will doubtless show as many as sixty-five millions.

For a gentleman who has so long edited a humorous newspaper, says the Denver Tribune, Assistant Postmaster-General Hutton makes some remarkably pathetic official decisions. It must rack his soul to come down from essays stove-pipes and cucumbers to ponderous opinions on second class postal matter.

The Marriage of Chief Justice Prince and Miss Beardsley.

From the New York Mail we clip the following description of the marriage of Chief Justice Prince to Miss Beardsley and a short history of each: Chief Justice Le Roy Prince, of New Mexico, and Miss Mary C. Beardsley were married yesterday afternoon at Trinity Church in this city, the ceremony being performed by Right Rev. A. N. Littlejohn, bishop of Long Island. The wedding was an entirely private affair, only the immediate relatives on each side being invited to be present. The bride was given away by Attorney-General Gilchrist, of New Jersey.

For a number of years before going to New Mexico Judge Prince was a prominent figure in the affairs of this State. For seven successive years he was elected a member of the Legislature, serving five of those years in the Assembly and two of them in the Senate. During this time he was identified, almost from the beginning of his legislative career, with various reform measures which engrossed the attention of the people, and was especially known for the part he took in the trials of Judge Barnardo, Cardozo and McCunn, and for his advocacy of the constitutional amendments while he was in office. He was appointed Chief Justice of New Mexico in 1879, and after several times declining that office as well as several others which were tendered to him by the administration, he finally accepted, at the special request of Secretary Evans and the Attorney-General, and immediately moved to the Territory and commenced the performance of his duties. In that position he has given special satisfaction by the impartiality and efficiency of his administration of justice, and has taken a very active interest in the development of the Territory.

The bride is the daughter of the late Col. Samuel R. Beardsley, who commanded the Twenty-fourth New York Volunteers in the war, and was also Mayor of Oswego. The Beardsley family was for many years one of the most prominent in Central New York. Levi Beardsley, the bride's grandfather, having served eight terms in the State Senate, and his brother, Judge Samuel Beardsley, holding for many years important official positions, including the judgeship, the Attorney-Generalship of the State, and a seat in the Congress, during four terms from the Union district. He will be specially remembered by those of the older generation for what was called the "Perish credit perish comers" speech in the days of Jackson. On the mother's side Mrs. Prince is of German descent, her grandfather having been Christian J. Burckle, well known among all New York merchants.

Judge Prince is only absent from New Mexico for a short time, and will soon return with Mrs. Prince to Santa Fe. Previous to that, however, they will hold a reception on November 29th at the residence of Mrs. Attorney-General Gilchrist, the bride's sister, in Jersey City.

Judge Folger's Record.

Judge Folger's career on the bench of our court of last resort which ends by resignation, covers a space of ten years. He was elected an associate judge in 1870, and served as such until May, 1880, when, on the death of Judge Church, he was appointed chief judge by Gov. Cornell. At the November election of the same year he was re-elected chief judge, and he has since that time held the office. His term would have expired until the close of the year 1884. The emine thus voluntarily laid aside has no stain upon it. Judge Folger's record in the Court of Appeals stands for rapid services to the public, performed with conspicuous fidelity to justice. He held the scales with equal hands. No man need desire a fairer or more enduring monument than that which he has left in the jurisprudence of New York. He has only to succeed as well in the Cabinet as he did on the bench, to add to his reputation as judge that of a consummate financier. Albany Evening Journal.

Nothing is more certain than that when a business man gets very large profits his race is nearly run. Those who are already in it may get rich, but the latecomers, who strike in only after its profitability has leaked and become known to the whole community, will not only be ruined, but will cut down the profits to a point so fine as to render them merely nominal or worse. Let every man stick to the business he knows, constantly studying new plans to make it more productive, to lessen his expense and increase his profits. The man who knows all about a ship from the keel up will make a living profit, while the amateur, who only knows what others tell him, will lose. The foreign trader, who knows precisely the wants of the market to which he sends his goods, will get rich, while his neighbor, who gets his information at second hand from private current affairs, will find information accessible to everybody, will almost inevitably fail.

A dull axe never loves grindstones, but a keen workman does, and he puts his tools on them in order that they may be sharp. And men do not like grinding, but they are dull for purposes which God designs to work out with them, and therefore he is grinding them.
